

Don't Risk Your Child's Life!

Automotive Safety for Children in the 21st Century
Seventh Revised Edition - Released May 2004

Created by

Shelness Productions

in association with

The University of Michigan

Child Passenger Protection Research Program

The video is accompanied by an instructor's reference and print material. The information sheets are intended to be reproduced and handed to parents and care givers who have viewed the program.

Running time 21 minutes

✓ Air Bags:

Dramatic sequences of air bag deployment with a rear-facing infant dummy are shown in real time as well as in slow motion. These tests leave no doubt concerning the life-threatening danger air bags pose to rear-facing infants and also to older children.

✓ The Special Need of Infants:

Crash footage illustrates the critical importance of infants riding rear-facing to at least age one and 30 or 35 pounds. Rear-facing, the infant's fragile neck is protected; facing forward could lead to spinal cord injury in a crash.

Highlights

Available in English and Spanish

✓ Booster Seats:

A crash test shows the benefits of a "belt-positioning" booster, compared to a shield-type booster. Use of belt-positioning boosters is urged until correct belt fit can be achieved with the child sitting on the seat of the vehicle— until about age eight and 80 pounds.

✓ Incompatibility:

Solutions to problems with child restraints that cannot be tightly secured are shown. The function of a top tether strap is explained. The universal attachment system, named LATCH (Lower Anchors and Tethers for Children), is demonstrated.
